Job Title: Associate QA Engineer

Company Name: Carry1st

Share

Description

Carry1st is Africa's leading publisher of mobile games and digital content. Operating at the intersection of games, publishing, and fintech, we scale awesome content in frontier markets by solving hard problems. Across our publishing and Pay1st business lines, we are partnered with top global game companies like Riot Games, Activision, and Stillfront. We are backed by top investors like: a16z, Bitkraft, Google, Konvoy, Riot Games, Sony, and Nas

As a QA Engineer, you will be responsible for assessing the software for bugs, suggesting changes, and ensuring it meets quality standards. You will also prepare test cases to check the software and document results.

You will:

- Test the functionality, usability, and performance of our mobile app gaming application across various devices and platforms
- Identify and report software defects and inconsistencies, and work closely with developers to resolve issues on time
- Collaborate with cross-functional teams, including developers, designers, and product managers, to prioritize and address QA concerns
- Provide feedback and suggestions for improving the user experience and overall quality of the mobile app gaming application

Requirements

What makes you a great candidate?

- At least 3 years of Quality Assurance experience, preferably in mobile app testing and gaming
- Familiarity with mobile app development platforms (iOS, Android) and gaming industry standards
- Experience with mobile app tools like test flight, emulators, firebase, analytic tools, etc
- Passion for mobile gaming and a desire to deliver high-quality gaming experiences to users
